STAGE STORIES.

The dramatization of "David Harum" was produced Monday night at Rochester, N. Y., by W. H. Crane before a packed house, Mr. Crane appearing in the name part. From the opening scene, which depicts David Harum's house, with its veranda, the barn and farming implements lying about, till the finale, good old fashioned Christmas dinner and the opening of the bottle of champagne for which David must have paid at least "four shillings" there was really not a dull moment. The wholesomeness and delightful atmosphere of the play appealed strongly to all. It promises very great success.

Klaw & Erlanger have decided to end, for the present season, the marvelously successful engagement of their great production of "Ben Hur" at the Broadway theatre, New York, Saturday evening, May 12th. On this date this play will have run just six months and have been presented 194 times. At that time over 400,000 people will have seen it and the box-office will have aggregated over $400,000. This is by far the greatest record of attendance and receipts ever recorded, either in this country or abroad. The second season will begin on September 3d at the Broadway theatre.

BOONE, THE WONDER.

Prof. Edwin Boone, the hypnotist and mind reader, who appears Monday night at the Paris Grand, gave a most successful and wonderful performance Monday night to a packed house at Cynthiana, everybody being delighted with the show. Prof. Boone did his blind-fold carriage drive, going a mile from town, crossing the railroad track, evading a brick pile, bicycle, and finding a key. Then he went to the postoffice and secured a sealed letter which he took to the owner, telling him the contents. At the opera house, he had six rings belonging to as many young ladies, securely hidden. Then he found them and returned each ring correctly. His other feats were also successful.

To-morrow evening at seven o'clock Prof. Boone will hypnotize his subject and place him in the window at Saloshin & Co.'s, where he will remain until Monday night.

Monday, Prof. Boone will give his wonderful carriage drive, blind-folded, to search for a hidden article.

Prof. Boone's fellow-townsmen should compliment him with a packed house. They will not see an amateur performance, but will witness a very clever exhibition which will rank with any ever given by the wonderful Bishop, the mind-reader. Parisians should take pride in packing the Grand to overflowing.

SONG OF THE PLODDER.

God gave my rival grief that I
 As a man do without;
 On wings of genius he may fly,
 While I must plod along;
 The eagle for which I still long
 He taught with wings and song;
 But there are cravens that are strong
 And ways men cannot leave.

Beats his talents mine are poor;
 While he might soar, my way
 Must always be the same and sure
 That leads on day by day;
 He might outstrip me if he would
 And win the prize I crave;
 But with and allness are good,
 And that's a volter klave.

God gave him gifts that I have not;
 That which in patient ways
 And years of toiling I have wrought
 He might have done in days;
 I may achieve no sudden height,
 Nor with swift glory here—
 But I can earn my appetite,
 And I am perseverant.

Late that afternoon, just after the various trunks and boxes of the Frosts that were to go by the transport were packed and ready, and Mrs. Frost, looking stronger at last, though still fragile, almost ethereal, was returning from a drive with one of her friends, the attention of the two ladies was drawn to a crowd gathering rapidly on the sidewalk not far from the Baldwin hotel. There was no shouting, no commotion, nothing but the idle curiosity of men and boys, for a young soldier, a handsome, slender, dark-eyed, dark-complexioned fellow of 21 or 22, had been arrested by a patrol and there they stood, the sergeant and his two soldiers fully armed and equipped, the hapless captive with his arms half-filled with bundles, and over the heads of the little throng the ladies could see that he was pleading earnestly with his captors, and that the sergeant, though looking sympathetic and far from unkind, was shaking his head. Mrs. Frost, listless and a little fatigued, had witnessed too many such scenes in former days of garrison life to take any interest in the proceeding. "How stupid these people are!" she irritably exclaimed; "running like mad and blocking the streets to see a soldier arrested for absence from camp without a pass. Shant we drive on?"

"Oh—just one moment, please, Mrs. Frost. He has such a nice face—a gentleman's face, and he seems so troubled. Do look at it!"

Largely and with something very like a pout, Mrs. Frost turned her face again toward the sidewalk, but by this time the sergeant had linked an arm in that of the young soldier and had led him a pace or two away, so that his back was now toward the carriage. He was still pleading, and the crowd had begun to back him up, and was exclaiming, too.

"Aw, take him where he says, sergeant, and let him prove it!"

"Don't be hard on him, man. If he's taking care of a sick friend, give 'em a chance."

Then the sergeant tried to explain matters. "I can't help myself, gentlemen," said he, "orders are orders, and mine are to find this recruit and fetch him back to camp. He's two days over time now."

"Oh, I wish I knew what it meant!" exclaimed Mrs. Frost's companion. "I'm sure he needs help." Then with sudden joy in her eyes: "Oh, good! There goes Col. Crosby. He'll see what's ailed," and as she spoke a tall man in the fatigues of an officer of infantry shouldered his way through the crowd, and reached the blue-coated quartette in the center. Up went the hands to the shouldered rifles in salute, and the young soldier, the cause of the gathering which the police were now trying to disperse, whirled quickly, and with something suspiciously like tears in his blue dark eyes, was seen to be eagerly speaking to the veteran officer.

There was a brief colloquy, and then the colonel said something to the sergeant at which the crowd set up a cheer. The sergeant looked pleased, the young soldier most grateful, and away went the four along the sidewalk, many of the throng following.

And then the colonel caught sight of the ladies in the carriage, saw that one was staring eagerly, and heard his name called. Hastening to their side, he raised his cap and smiled a cordial greeting.

"Oh, I'm so glad you came, colonel, we are so interested in that young soldier. Do tell us what it all means. Oh! I beg your pardon, Mrs. Frost, I surely thought you had met Col. Crosby—let me pre— Why, Nita? What's— Are you all? Here, take my salts, quick!"

"No—no—good—I—I want to hear! Where are they taking him?" faintly murmured Mrs. Frost.

"Try to control yourself," said her companion. "I'll tell you in one moment." Meantime from without the carriage the colonel continued, addressing Nita's companion:

"He tells a perfectly straight story. He says he has an old friend who is so desperately ill and out of money—that he got a doctor for him and had been nursing him himself. Those things he carries are medicines and wine that the doctor told him to buy. All he asks is to take them to his friend's room and get a nurse, then he is ready to go to camp and stand for his trial, so I told the sergeant I'd be responsible."

"Oh, thank you much! I hope that the poor fellow isn't punished. What drive right round. Perhaps we can do something. It is Red Cross business, you know. Good afternoon, colonel. Please tell our driver to follow them."

But, to her consternation, no sooner had they started than she felt Nita's trembling hand grasping her wrist, and turning quickly saw that she was in an almost hysterical condition.

"My poor child, I had forgotten you were so worn out. I'll take you home at once—but then we'll miss them entirely. Oh, could you bear—"

"Oh! No! No!" moaned Nita, wringing her little hands. "Take me—anywhere. No! Take me home—take me home! and promise me not to tell my husband what we saw."

CHAPTER XI.

For a man ordinarily absorbed in his own command, Col. Stanley Armstrong had become all on a sudden deeply engrossed in that of Col. Canker. The Frosts had been gone a week via Vancouver—the expedition only about 16 hours—when he appeared at Gordon's tent and frankly asked to be told all that tall southerner knew of the young soldier Morton, now gone from camp for the third, and, as Armstrong believed, the last time.

"Why, that young fellow's a bawny gentleman," drawled Gordon, as he offered the colonel a chair and cigar. "He was beavin' tip top, steady as you please, until about a month ago. He's only been with us since 1st of May—came with a big batch of recruits—a regular athlete, you know. Then after he'd drilled while I nailed him for headquarters clerk. I never knew him to be off an hour until about four weeks ago. The men say another young fella came out here one night, had a talk with Morton, and they went together. He got regular permission. Nobody has set eyes on his friend out here since that time, but Morton got three passes to town in ten days, and Squeers happened to want him, and gave orders he should have to be consulted hereafter. 'Bout a fortnight since, by Jove, Morton lit out suddenly and was gone 48 hours and was brought back by a patrol, perfectly straight, and he said he had to go on account of a friend who had been taken very ill and was a stranger here. Squeers let him off with a warning, and 24-hour pass, and Squeers wouldn't give it. He went without it, by George!"

It was just about the time the Prime family arrived, looking up the boy they heard was in your regiment. This time there was big trouble. The patrol sent for him went directly to the lodgings of his sick friend, and there they found him and he laid out two of our best men for forcing a way into the room. They told me your carriage nearly ran over him the day of the review. Then came that dam fool charge about his being mixed up in this robbery. Then his escape from under Billy Gray's nose, by Gawge, and that's the last of him. Canker sent a party in to look him up at the usual place, and both birds had flown, both, by Gawge! The sick man was well enough to be driven off in a carriage, and there's nothing further to tell as yet."

"I wish I had known about him earlier—before the Primes came," said Armstrong thoughtfully, knocking the ashes off his cigar. "Of course you divine my theory."

"That Morton is the missing son and heir? Of course. Now that I've seen Miss Prime the family resemblance is strong. But if he wanted to soldier, what's to prevent? Those tents jawdun are full of youngsters better educated than I am," and Gordon arose, tugging a long, lean leg in the nearest camp stool, which he promptly kicked through the doorway into the sailing fog outside. It was barely 11 o'clock, but already the raw, wet wind was whistling in over the barren, sandy slopes and dunes, and the moisture dripped in big drops from the sloped rifles of the men marching sturdily in from drill.

"Yawdun comes the Prime carriage now, by Gawge," continued the adjutant, as he limped to the entrance. "Ole man seems all broke up, don't he?" Armstrong had promptly risen and came striding to his comrade's side.

"Naturally," was the answer. "He had hoped much from this visit. The boy was just under 21 when he enlisted, and, as his father's consent was lacking, a discharge could have been ordered. It may have been fear of that that drove the youngster off. Where is the carriage—and your glasses?" continued the colonel, looking about until he found a binocular.

"Comin' right down the road back of the officers' tents. Reckon it's another visit of condolence to Gray. You know I shouldn't wonder if this arrest of his didn't prove a blessin' in disguise for that lucky boy."

No reply coming to this observation, Gordon glanced over his shoulder. Armstrong was replacing the glasses. Again the adjutant hazarded:

"I—I was saying this arrest may be, after all, the biggest kind of blessing in disguise for that lucky Billy. Yes, by Jove! They're comin' to his tent. That's a splendid girl, ole man."

"Miss Prime, you mean?" calmly queried Armstrong, striking match after match in the effort to light a fresh cigar, his face averted.

"Miss Prime I don't mean," answered Gordon, glancing curiously at the senior officer. "Not but that she's a most charming young lady and all that," he hurriedly interpolated, southernly chivalry asserting itself. Then with a twitch about the lip: "By the way, ole man, those cigars light better from the other end. Take a fresh one."

Armstrong quickly withdrew the ill-used weed from between his strong, white teeth, gave it one glance and a toss into the waste basket.

"No, I've smoked enough. But how can they see him? How about that center over Gray's tent?"

"Hub! Chief made them take it off directly he heard of it," grinned Gordon. "Moses! But didn't Squeers blaspheme!" And the adjutant threw his head back and laughed joyously over the retrospect. "Yes, there's that early-headed pate of Billy's at the tent door now. Reckon he was expectin' 'em. There they are, ole Prime, too. Don't be in a hurry, colonel."

They had known each other years, these two, and it had been "Armstrong" and "Gordon" when they addressed each other, or "ole man" when Gordon lapsed into the semi-affectionate. To the adjutant's southern sense of military propriety "ole man" was still possible. "Armstrong" would be a soldierly solecism.

"I am to see the general before noon," said Armstrong, gravely, "and it's time I started. If you should hear of your runaway let me know. If you shouldn't, keep my views to yourself. There's no use in rousing false hopes." With that Armstrong turned up the collar of his overcoat and lunged out into the mist.

Gordon watched him as he strode away, the orderly following at the conventional distance. The shortest way to general headquarters was up the row of company officers' tents in front of the still incarcerated Billy; the longest was round back of the mess tent and kitchen. Armstrong took the latter.

That escape of prisoners was still the talk of camp. Men had come by battalions to see the tunnel, observing which Canker promptly ordered it closed up. Opinion was universal that Canker should have released the officers and men he had placed under arrest at once, but he didn't. In his bottled wrath he hung on to them until the brigade commander took a hand and ordered it. Canker grudgingly obeyed so far as the sergeant and sentries were concerned, but entered stout protest as to Gray.

"I still hold that officer as having knowledge of the scheme and aiding and abetting. I can prove that he telephoned for that carriage," he said.

"At least there's nothing to warrant the posting of that sentry at Mr. Gray's tent, Col. Canker," said the brigadier, with some asperity. "Order him off at once. That's all for to-day, sir," and the man with the starred shoulders "held over" him with the silver leaves. The latter could only obey—and ob-jurgate.

But Canker's knuckles came in for another rasping within the hour. The brigadier being done with him, the division commander's compliments came over per order, and would the colonel please step to the general's tent. Canker was fuming to get to town. He was possessed with insane desire to follow up that boarding house clew. He believed the landlady could be bullied into telling where her boarder was taken, and what manner of man (or woman) he was. But down he had to go, three blocks of camp, to where the tents of division headquarters were pitched, and there sat the veteran commander, suave and placid as ever.

"Ah, colonel, touching that matter of the robbery of your commissary stores. Suspicion points very strongly to your Sergt. Foley. Do you think it wise to have no sentry over him?"

"Why—general," said Canker, "I've known that man 15 years—in fact, I got him ordered to duty here," and the colonel smiled.

"Well—pardon me, colonel, but you heard the evidence against him last night, or at least heard of it. Don't you consider that conclusive?"

Canker cleared his throat and considered as suggested.

"I heard the allegation sir, but—he made so clear an explanation to me, at last, and besides, general"—a bright idea occurring to him—"you know that as commissary sergeant he is not under my command."

"Tut, tut, colonel," interrupted the general, waxing impatient. "The storehouse adjoins your camp. Your sentries guard it. Capt. Hanford, the commissary, says he called on you last night to notify you that he had placed the sergeant under arrest, but considered the case so grave that he asked that a sentry be placed over him, and it wasn't done."

"I dislike very much to inflict such indignity on deserving soldiers, general," said Canker, stumbling into a self-made trap. "Until their guilt is established they are innocent under the law."

"Apparently you apply a different rule in case of officers," calmly responded the general, "vide Mr. Gray. No further words are necessary. Oblige me by having that sentry posted at once. Good morning, sir."

But to Canker's dismay the officer of the guard made prompt report. The sentry was sent, but the sergeant's tent was empty. The colonel's pet had flown. This meant more trouble for the colonel.

Meantime Stanley Armstrong had hid him to Gen. Drayton's headquarters. The office tents were well filled with clerks, orderlies, aides and other officers who had come in on business, but the meeting was by appointment, and after brief delay the camp commander excused himself to those present and ushered Armstrong into his own private tent, the scene of the merry festivities the evening of Mrs. Garrison's unexpected arrival. There the general turned quickly on his visitor with the low-toned question:

"Well—what have you found?"

"Enough to give me strong reason for believing that Morton, so-called, is young Prime, and that your nephew is with him, sir."

The old soldier's sad eyes lighted with sudden hope. Yet as he passed his hand wearily over his forehead, the look of doubt and uncertainty slowly returned. "It accounts for the letters reaching me here," he said, "but—I've known that boy from babyhood, Armstrong, and a more intense nature I have never heard of. What he starts in to do he'll carry out if it kills him."

Drayton looked drearily at the tent as though in search of something that didn't quite know what. Then he set tied back slowly into his favorite old chair. "Do sit down, Armstrong. I want to speak with you a moment." Yet it was the colonel who was the first to break the silence.

"May I ask if you have had time to look at any of the letters, sir?"

"Do I look as though I had time to do anything?" said the colonel, dropping his hands and uplifting a lined and haggard face, yet so refined. "Anything but work, work, work, noon and night. The mass of detail one has to meet here is something appalling. It weighs on me like a nightmare, Armstrong. No, I was worn out the night after the package reached me. When next I sought it the letters were gone."

"How long was that, general?"

Again the weary hands, with their long, tapering fingers, came up to the old soldier's brow. He pondered a moment. "It must have been the next afternoon, I think, but I can't be sure."

"And you had left them—?"

"In the inside pocket of that old overcoat of mine, hanging there on the rear tent pole," was the answer, as the general turned half round in his chair and glanced wistfully, self-reproachfully thither.

Armstrong arose and, going to the back of the tent, made close examination. The canvas home of the chief was what is known as the hospital tent, but instead of being pitched with the ordinary ridge pole and upright, a substantial wooden frame and floor had first been built and over this the stout canvas was stretched, stanch and taut as the head of a drum. It was all intact and sound. Whoever fished that packet made way with it through the front, and that, as Armstrong well knew, was kept tightly leaved, as a rule, from the time the general left it in the morning until his return. It was never unlaced except in his presence or by his order. Then the deft hands of the orderlies on duty would do the trick in a twinkling. Knowing all this, the colonel queried further:

"You went in town, as I remember late that evening and called on the Primes and other people at the Palace. I think I saw you in the supper room. There was much merriment at your table. Mrs. Garrison seemed to be the life of the party. Now, you left your overcoat with the boy at the cloak stand?"

"No, Armstrong, that's the odd part of it. I only used the cape that evening. The coat was hanging at its usual place when I returned late, with a mass of new orders and papers. Not no! But here, I must get back to the office, and what I wished you to see was that poor boy's letter. What can you hope with a nature like that to deal with?"

KILLED HIS MAN.

But First He Retreated as Far as Possible, Then Pulled His Derringer and Fired.

"A story I read the other day," said A. G. Hepworth, of Atlanta, "strongly reminds me of one that I heard of a Mobile lawyer. This lawyer, who was lame and had something of a reputation as a fighter, was at one time attorney in a suit that caused much ill-feeling. He won the suit for his client, and the loser vowed vengeance. 'In pursuance of that same,' in the language of Truthful James, he one day went into the lawyer's office and subjected him to a tirade of abuse that would have caused a salt water captain to die from pure envy, such was his talent in vituperation. The lawyer answered him nothing, to the surprise of two or three men who were present, but, getting out of his chair began to hobble backward. His enemy, thinking he was retreating, followed him up, with more abuse and threatening gestures. The lawyer's foot finally struck against the wall, when he suddenly straightened up, saying: 'Gentlemen, I call on you to witness that, on account of this wall, I have retreated as far as possible' (the general law of homicide), drew a derringer and shot his opponent. At the trial he was acquitted, his witnesses being the men present at the time of the killing, who testified to the lawyer having retreated as far as possible."—N. Y. Tribune.

This Bird Was a Critic.

A Scotch gentleman owns a clever parrot who picks up many of the remarks it hears, and at times retails them at most opportune moments. A favorite exclamation of the Scotchman when his wife complains of any little ailment is: "Great Scott! what's wrong wid ye?" Just lately he sat strutting on the piano with one finger, and endeavoring to sing the air of a new song belonging to his wife. Having little or no ear for music, the effect was decidedly inharmonious. On his performance coming to an end, the parrot, who had evidently listened in disapproving silence, ejaculated: "Great Scott! what's wrong wid ye?"—London Answers.

The Point of View.

"Magnificence" may signify one thing to one person and quite another thing to another person. It is related that a gentleman went to a dentist and asked him to "take a look at his teeth." The dentist did so, and seemed full of admiration.

"What do you think of them?" asked the patient.

"Magnificent! magnificent!" was all the dentist could say.

"Then you don't find anything to do to them?"

"To do to them? Why, there are four to be pulled, six to be filled, and three to be crowned!"—Youth's Companion.

THE BOER POSITION.

It Extends Over Fifteen Miles in a Continuous Row of Hills.

No Official News From Wepener, and the Report of the British Defeat There Is Not Believed in London—Other War News.

Ladysmith, April 11.—Heavy firing was heard early Tuesday morning in the direction of Sundays river. It continued for a few hours. No details of the engagement have been received.

London, April 11.—The Daily News has the following from Pretoria, dated Monday, by way of Delagoa bay:

"It is officially announced that a battle has been fought south of Brandfort, in which 600 British troops were killed and wounded and 800 taken prisoners. Lord Roberts is declared to be finding great difficulty owing to scarcity of water."

London, April 11.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Brandfort, dated Sunday, says: "Yesterday Gen. DeWet indicated the third defeat of the British within a week at Mercketsfontein, killing and wounding 600. He captured 900, with 12 wagons, losing five Boers killed and nine wounded."

No confirmation has been received from British sources of the reverse, and it would be advisable not at once to give to statement of British losses their face value. The present announcement may be a relapse of the Boer versions of Sammas Post and Reddersburg, although it should certainly be borne in mind that the Mail's telegram speaks distinctly of a third British defeat.

Bloemfontein, April 10.—Gen. Gatacre has been recalled. He will return immediately to England. S. Herbert Chermide will command the 11th division.

Gen. Gatacre's recall gives credence to the story that Wepener, which Gen. Brabant had been holding, has been evacuated owing to Gatacre's largeness in conducting the relief of that place.

Simonstown, April 12.—Owing to the unfavorable conditions for keeping the Boer prisoners here, the authorities have decided to ship them all to St. Helena with the least possible delay. The sickness among the captured burghers is abating.

London, April 12.—The war office issued Wednesday afternoon a return of the total British casualties up to April 7. It was as follows: Killed in action, 241 officers and 1,980 men. Died of wounds, 48 officers and 665 men. Missing and prisoners, 168 officers and 3,722 men. Died of disease, 47 officers and 1,435 men. Accidental deaths, 3 officers and 34 men. Repatriated invalids, 288 officers and 4,934 men. Total, 13,365, exclusive of the sick and wounded now in hospital.

To the war office returns of casualties must be added to the losses of the last week and the wounded, aggregating about 10,000 men, making a grand total of upwards of 23,000 officers and men put out of action.

Elandslaagte, April 11.—Last night the Boers set fire to the grass on two hills almost on their extreme wings. The motive has not been ascertained, but the incident disclosed the fact that their position extends over fully 15 miles in a continuous row of hills, from Jones kop, on the British left, to a kopje commanding Sunday's river bridge, on the right.

During the night the Boers moved most of their cannon. There has been some unimportant skirmishing to-day.

The British still command Sunday's river bridge. No development from yesterday's affair is expected.

London, April 12.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Bloemfontein, April 11.—Methuen reports that the party of Boers defeated April 5 made a good resistance for four hours, and only gave in when our troops, with fixed bayonets, were within 15 yards of them. Seven of the enemy were killed, 11 were wounded and 51 were made prisoners. Besides Lieuts. Boyle and Williams, Sergt. Patrick Campbell was killed and two of our men were wounded. Williams was killed deliberately after the white flag had been held up. The perpetrator of the crime was at once shot."

"Methuen speaks in high terms of the intelligent manner in which the imperial yeomanry and Kimberley mounted corps behaved."

"Buller reports that the enemy attacked his right flank yesterday while he was engaged in changing his position, but our artillery silenced their guns, and they did not press the attack. Our losses were four killed and eight men wounded."

"There is no further news from Wepener."

Alwal North, April 11.—Lord Kitchener arrived here to-day and left soon after. A Boer big gun was knocked over yesterday at Wepener. The garrison is holding its own.

Pretoria, April 10.—The latest news from the front is that fighting is continuing at Elandslaagte (Natal) and Dewetsdorp (Orange Free State), but no particulars have been received.

Coal Scarc in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 11.—With 1,000 miners on a strike and half of the mines operating on half time, and with no immediate prospect of a complete resumption, the condition of the coal trade locally has assumed alarming proportions.

As Fate Would Have It.

Many years ago an Arkansas youth, leaving the home of his sweetest at night, received a severe kick as he stepped out of the door. His beloved had responded definitely to his proposal of marriage, but had assured him that she would soon let him know what she could do for him. He, unfortunately for two tender hearts, took the kick for an answer and departed for a far and wild country. There he brooded over his wound and his broken heart until his beard grew down to his knees and his nose became human. As fate would have it, as fate always has it, he turned up late one sad, sad evening when the straw-neck hens were quarrelling on the roof and the brindle cow was bawling mournfully for her hungry offspring. A young man some six feet tall met the lone visitor. It was one of seven sons, born from time to time, unto his old love. Explanations followed. It was not the girl who kicked him 30 years before. Oh no! It was her angry father. He went out to the horse lot, cut off his beard with the shears and kicked himself down the hill. —Galveston News.

Medicines that are advertised to cure everything cannot be specifics for anything.

THE PORTO RICAN BILL

Concurs in the Senate Amendments and Passes the Measure.

Passed in the Senate Setting Apart a Portion of the Arlington Estate for an Experimental Farm.

Washington, April 12.—The long struggle over the Porto Rican bill ended when the house, by a vote of 164 to 153, concurred in the senate amendments. As the bill originally passed the house it was amended by the senate, imposing a 15 per cent. duty on goods going into Porto Rico from the United States, and a 10 per cent. duty on goods coming from Porto Rico into the United States. As amended by the house, the bill provided that all goods coming into the United States from Porto Rico are to be treated as if they had come from the United States, and certain foodstuffs and articles which heretofore have been excluded from the operation of the 15 per cent. duty imposed on goods entering the island from the United States. A complete list of goods excluded from the operation of the bill is also attached to the measure. The final vote nine republicans voted against the bill—Messrs. Heat, (Maine), Crumpacker (Ind.), (Mass.), Littlefield (Me.), McCall (Mass.), H. C. Smith (Mich.), Warner (Ind.), Hotel (Me.) and Lorimer (N.Y.). Two democrats—Messrs. Dwyer and Mayer (Ia.)—were paired with republicans in favor of the bill, and one democrat—Mr. Sibley (Pa.)—voted in the affirmative. Mr. D. Vries, the democrat who voted for the bill, and Mr. Stallings (dem., Ala.) who voted against it, were the only members on either side absent and unpaired.

The vote came at 5 o'clock, after a long and interesting and at times exciting debate of five hours, which covered not only the bill, but the special order under which the house acted. One of the most dramatic features of the day was the reading by Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, of the opinion of Charles D. Macrum, the legal adviser of the Porto Rican expropriation, Mr. Dwyer, in reply, termed Mr. Macrum a "liar" who tried to overrule the great majority of the house. Messrs. Warner (Ind.), McCall (Mass.) and Lorimer (N.Y.), all republicans, made speeches against the motion to concur.

When the senate convened Wednesday, Mr. Macrum reported from the committee on agriculture a bill setting apart a portion of the Arlington estate for an experimental farm, to be operated under the direction of the secretary of agriculture, and it was passed.

Washington, April 12.—At the instance of Mr. Hale, chairman of the committee, the senate took up a bill providing for the construction, maintenance and operation, under the management of the navy department, of a Pacific cable. The bill as reported to the senate is a substitute for the measure as originally introduced by Mr. Hale. It carries an appropriation of $3,000,000 for the project. The bill provides for a cable from San Francisco to Honolulu, the work to be done under the supervision of the navy department, which has made surveys and determined the practicability of the route. The navy department may use any of its ships that can be adapted to the task of laying the cable, and if it needs other ships, it may charter them. In addition to the bill, the secretary of the navy, in his discretion, if he finds it not practicable to lay the cable, may contract, under specifications, for the construction, laying and equipment of the cable. All materials and apparatus used shall be of first-class quality. Section 3 provides that the cable, and other instruments, materials, apparatus and appliances necessary in the work of laying the cable, shall be of American manufacture, provided the same can be produced at a cost not exceeding 12 per cent. above the price for the same as for foreign markets.

The bill explained that the bill provided for the building of the cable from San Francisco to Honolulu. The bill, he said, would be in the nature of an experiment, and upon the result of it would depend in a measure the future course of the government. It might be deemed desirable, in the light of experience, to start the Pacific cable from some point like Manila and proceed to Japan by the northern route.

The bill was passed without division. During the rest of the session the committee on Columbia appropriation bill was under consideration, and was finally passed. It carries nearly $5,000,000.

MACRUM'S TALKS.

He Says That the Statement Made By Consul Adelbert Hay Is a Lie.

East Liverpool, O., April 12.—Hon. Charles D. Macrum, ex-consul in Pretoria, South African Republic, when seen regarding the statement that Consul Adelbert Hay has failed to find any evidence of the consular mail being tampered with during Mr. Macrum's stay at Pretoria, said: "While I do not take much stock in newspaper reports, this is such a palpable perversion of the truth that it is impossible to allow the matter to pass unnoticed, as it seems to have come from the state department. This statement is on a parallel with the malicious misrepresentations which came from the same department before I reached this country. If proofs of all my charges are not on file at the consulate at Pretoria, it is because they have been willfully abstracted therefrom. In short, I want to say that the statement published is a lie—nothing more or less. I have been slandered and maligned until I have become tired of it."

TO UNSEAT CLARK.

Committee Will Report That He Is Not Entitled to Occupy His Seat as Senator From Montana.

Washington, April 11.—The senate committee on privileges and elections Tuesday decided by a unanimous vote to recommend the adoption of a resolution declaring that Hon. W. A. Clark, of Montana, is not entitled to occupy his seat as senator from Montana. The decision was reached after a two hours' sitting, at which all the members of the committee were present except one. The absentee was Senator Caffery, of Louisiana, and he wired his vote in opposition to Mr. Clark. The ballot was not taken until all the members present had expressed themselves upon the question.

ITALY ON THE WARPATH.

She Threatens a Commercial Warfare On Her Allies and an Alliance With France and Spain.

Rome, April 12.—The Messagero, in discussing Italy's position in 1900 on the expiration of the commercial treaties with Germany, Austria-Hungary and Switzerland says: "It is quite clear that in three years Italy must open a commercial warfare upon her two allies. After many, many sacrifices we are looked upon as a lemon that has been cleverly squeezed and can now be thrown away. The time has come to think seriously of an alliance with France and Spain, whose destiny and interests are common with ours."

The building and its contents were completely wrecked, but the inmates escaped with but slight injuries. Three masked men did the work.

The Trial at Frankfort.

News of the investigation of the Goebel assassination at Frankfort has been very scarce since Judge Cantrill has warned newspaper correspondents at Frankfort that they will be punished for contempt if they continue to report so much concerning the work of the grand jury in the Goebel assassination case. He forbids them even to report the names of witnesses appearing before the grand jury.

It is said the attorneys for the defense have decided to ask for a change of venue to Bourbon county in the trials of the Goebel assassination suspects. The next term of the Bourbon Circuit Court will be held in June. Judge Cantrill may, if he so desires, call a special term for the trial of these cases, and that is not improbable.

OBITUARY.

ESTES.—Died, at her home, Thorn Hill, Va., of pneumonia, on the morning of April 5th, 1900, while the sun was shining bright, Annie C. Estes, the beloved wife of J. H. Estes. She leaves a broken hearted husband with two bright little girls, Viola Gertrude and Luella Evelyn, aged 5 and 1½ years respectively, to mourn their loss, which is her gain. She also leaves in Bourbon County, Ky., a father, sister and brother. The remains were interred at Thorn Hill, Va. She was a good, kind mother, loving and affectionate wife. Oh how hard it is to realize in our afflictions that God doeth all things well.

HER BROKEN HEARTED HUSBAND. The remains of James G. Wall, an aged citizen of Cynthiana who died Tuesday, will be cremated at Cincinnati.

Mrs. Caroline Doehrer, aged seventy-one died Tuesday evening at half-past six o'clock from the effects of a stroke of paralysis which she suffered Sunday. The deceased was the mother of Mr. George Doehrer and Miss Rebecca Doehrer, of this city, and was the sister of Messrs. Dan and Charles Kastle, and Mrs. Joseph Hoising, of Lexington.

She was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian Church and was a Christian woman who was esteemed by every person of her acquaintance. Funeral services were held yesterday morning at ten o'clock at the residence on High street by Rev. F. J. Cneek and the remains were taken on the 11 o'clock train to Lexington to be laid to rest.

Mrs. Robert Jones, aged twenty-five, died Monday night on South Main street at the home of her husband, who survives her with three small children. The remains were taken to Smithfield, the former home of the deceased.

THE FARM AND TURF.

News For the Farmer, Trader and Stock Raiser.

Both the Democratic and Republican Agricultural Commissioners have issued reports regarding the April crop outlook.

The Tennessee Oaks, the first of the season, was won at Memphis Tuesday by the favorite, Belle of Orleans, by a dozen lengths.

S. D. Burbridge advertises in THE News the fine stallion Direct Line, 2:25½ (sire of Marion Maid, 2:22½, trial 2:14, Calvin, 2:28½, and Emeress, trial 2:15), by Director, 2:17, dam Lida W., 2:18½, by Nutwood. Direct Line will be at Brooklawn Farm, Hutchison. His fee is only fifteen dollars.

There should be an increased demand for good saddle horses in Kentucky at an early day. The English government has authorized the purchase of 30,000 cavalry horses, and as Kentucky furnishes the best cavalry horse in the country, there should be a boom in saddlers.

Bacon Bros. have sold to J. H. Howard, of Georgetown, the bay yearling cold Jay Ward, by Jay Bird, dam Bobbins Gray, by Scarlet Wilkes, second dam Lady Thornton 2:26½, (dam of Virginia Evans 2:14½) by Hambletonian. Price $200. Jay Ward will be trained for his Futurity engagements by Joe Lair.

The Louisville Times prints the following item in its gossip about the Derby starters: Kentucky Farmer was brought out on the track Sunday with a heavy boy up, and had instructions to work a mile in 1:50. The horse negotiated the distance in 1:45½, pulling for his head. John Rodegap, his trainer, is one of those individuals who tells his business to no one. There are many well-informed men at the track who think that probably Rodegap has something up his sleeve and intends to put another "dark horse" over the plate as he did when Spokane at long odds beat Proctor Knott.

If you cannot read this small print at a distance of 14 inches your eyesight is failing and should have immediate attention:

Imperial spectacles and eyeglasses have perfect lenses, always perfectly centered and made of purest material, set in frames of the highest elasticity and consequently of greatest durability, united with the utmost lightness and elegance. When both frames and lenses are scientifically fitted by Dr. C. H. Bowen's system they always give satisfaction for they are perfect. Never buy cheap spectacles, nor of men who do not know how to fit them. You will get poorly adjusted spectacles, or poor, imperfect lenses, and are better off without any glasses than with either of these defects. Buy Imperial spectacles of a reliable, skillful dealer, and they will last longer without change and be cheapest in the end.

We have engaged the services of Dr. C. H. Bowen who will visit our store on the second and last Thursdays of each month and invite all to call and have their eyes examined, for which there is no charge. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Be Careful

No woman can be too careful of her condition during the period before her little ones are born. Neglect or improper treatment then endangers her life and that of the child. It lies with her whether she shall suffer unnecessarily, or whether the ordeal shall be made comparatively easy. She had better do nothing than do something wrong.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

Is the one and the only preparation that is safe to use. It is a liniment that penetrates from the outside. External applications are eternally right. Internal medicines are radically wrong. They are more than humbugs—they endanger life.

Mother's Friend helps the muscles to relax and expand naturally—relieves morning sickness—removes the cause of nervousness and headache—prevents hard and rising breasts—shortens labor and lessens the pains—helps the patient to rapid recovery.

From a letter by a Shreveport, La., woman: "I have been using your wonderful remedy, Mother's Friend, for the last two months, and find it just as recommended."

Druggists sell it at $1 per bottle.

H. Clark, Channahow, Ga., says DeWitt's Little Early Risers cured him of piles that had afflicted him for twenty years. It is also a speedy cure for skin diseases. Beware of dangerous counterfeits. W. T. Brooks.

"I think DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the best pills in the world," says W. E. Lake, Happy Creek, Va. They remove all obstructions of the liver and bowels, and act quickly and never gripe. W. T. Brooks.

RHEUMATISM

Is due to an acid poison which gains access to the blood through failure of the proper organs to carry off and keep the system clear of all morbid, effete matter. This poison through the general circulation is deposited in the joints, muscles and nerves, causing the most intense pain.

Rheumatism may attack with such suddenness and severity as to make within a few days a healthy, active person helpless and bed-ridden, with distorted limbs and shattered nerves; or it may be slow in developing, with slight wandering pains, just severe enough to make one feel uncomfortable; the tendency in such cases is to grow worse, and finally become chronic.

Like other blood diseases, Rheumatism is often inherited, and exposure to damp or cold, want of proper food, insufficient clothing, or anything calculated to impair the health, will frequently cause it to develop in early life, but more often not until middle age or later. In whatever form, whether acute or chronic, Rheumatism is Strictly a Blood Disease, and no liniment or other external treatment can reach the trouble. Neither do the preparations of potash and mercury, and the various mineral salts, which the doctors always prescribe, cure Rheumatism, but ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

A remedy which builds up the general health and at the same time rids the system of the poison is the only safe and certain cure for Rheumatism. S. S. S., made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful medicinal properties, attacks the disease in the right way, and in the right place—the blood—and quickly neutralizes and removes all poisonous deposits, stimulates and reinforces the overworked, worn-out organs, and clears the system of all morbid accumulations. S. S. S. cures permanently and thoroughly, and keeps the blood in a pure, healthy state.

Dr. J. C. Smith, 104 W. 19th Street, Indianapolis, Ind., for eighteen months was so terribly afflicted with Rheumatism that he was unable to feed or dress himself. Doctors said his case was hopeless. He had tried everything that friends had given him, without the slightest relief. A few bottles of S. S. S. cured him permanently, and he has never had a rheumatic pain since. This was five years ago.

We will send free our special book on Rheumatism, which should be in the hands of every sufferer from this torturing disease. Our physicians have made blood and skin diseases a life study, and will give you any information or advice wanted, so write them fully and freely about your case. We make no charge whatever for this service. Address, SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

The oil well near Flemingsburg has passed the 2,000-foot mark and is progressing at the rate of about ten or twelve feet per day. There are about 1,900 feet of water in the hole, but no trace of oil yet.

Nearly all the dogs in Judy neighborhood, Montgomery, were killed on account of a mad dog scare. Somebody please scare up one in Paris and get several hundred worthless curs killed.

Winnie Smith, colored, of Louisville, has sued the L. & N. for $10,000 for being compelled to ride in a separate coach in which seven drunken white men were allowed to ride.

La Grippe coughs often continue for months and sometimes lead to fatal results after the patient is supposed to have passed the danger point. Foley's Honey and Tar affords positive protection and security from these coughs. Clarke & Kenney.

Broken-down Women

wary from pain and the torture of over-taxed nerves, it is but natural that you should be low-spirited and dejected. Worn-out by the care, the worry and the long suffering from weaknesses that has baffled the best efforts of your family doctor, it is no wonder you have become discouraged, and think there is nothing left for you but suffering and misery. Do not give up all hope, do not lose all courage. Remember Dr. Miles' Nervine has helped thousands of despondent women to regain their lost health and fullness of strength. It quickens the nerves, restores the weary brain, and drives worry and care away. It gives zest to the failing appetite, invigorates the digestion and adds new strength and vigor to the whole system. Don't forget the name.

DR. MILES' Nervine.

"Change of life left me a total wreck and I suffered nervousness, rheumatism, heart trouble and dropsy. When I commenced taking Dr. Miles' Nervine last December I was thought to be in the last stages of nervous prostration and was scarcely able to move about the house. I began to improve almost from the first dose, and in a few months I was enjoying better health than I had before in fifteen years. I am now able to walk ten or a dozen blocks without feeling in the least fatigued, and I bless the day I first heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine."
